ATPI Announces Partnership with M5 Networks

IT Services Firm Brings Outsourced IP Phone System to Hedge Funds

New York, January 23, 2006 – ATPI, a provider of outsourced IT services for small and midsize hedge funds, announced a partnership with M5 Networks, the northeast’s leading outsourced IP phone system provider.

“Business continuity and reducing operational expenses are top of mind initiatives for our hedge fund clients” said Paul DiBlasi, President of ATPI. M5’s outsourced Voice over IP (VOIP) service reduces a fund’s expenses by eliminating the cost of buying a PBX and bundling local and long distance charges into an economical monthly fixed cost per user. Since M5 houses its data and equipment at carrier-grade co-location facilities, its clients’ phone system data (including voicemail) is always protected should customers’ premises incur damage from a fire, flood or other disaster. This deployment enables hedge funds to have complementary business continuity plans for both voice and data.

“ATPI has an obligation to present our clients with new technology, and approaches to technology, that can positively impact their business” according to DiBlasi. “We accomplish this through relationships with partners, such as M5, that place the same premium on quality and responsiveness that ATPI does.”

“M5’s outsourced VOIP service enables small and midsize hedge funds to achieve their business continuity and cost reduction goals” said Dan Hoffman, President and CEO of M5 Networks. “Together ATPI and M5 can make a significant contribution to a fund’s success.”

About M5

M5 Networks is the leading outsourced IP phone system provider in the Northeast. By outsourcing to M5 instead of buying another phone system and signing more local and long distance contracts, businesses save valuable time and hard dollars. M5 was founded in 2000 by the same management team that ran Interport Communications, the ISP pioneer for New York businesses. M5 builds on that legacy by continually innovating to improve our outsourced phone system solution, which is delivering measurable ROI to companies in all industries. M5's core technology partners include Cisco, Verizon, AboveNet, Sprint, Qwest, Broadwing and Tekelec. M5 has been named to the Pulver 100 list as a Communications Growth Company for four consecutive years (2002-2005), FierceVoIP's annual Fierce 15 list (2005), and VoIP Magazine's 20 Companies to Watch list (2006) as well as received Frost & Sullivan's 2004 Entrepreneurial Company Award and the 2004 and 2005 VoIP Service Provider Awards and the 2005 Best SMB VoIP Service Provider Award from INTERNET TELEPHONY Magazine.
